PREFACE

Volume Forty-three of the Lineage Book is published in an enlarged edition of fifteen hundred copies. The growth of the Society and the greatly increased interest of the general public have rendered this step not only advisable but necessary in view of the requirements of the near future.

In these days of warfare when all hearts are thrilled by recital of military achievements we turn with quickened pride and affection to the records of these heroes who won the independence of our nation.

The frontispiece is a portrait of Commodore Abraham Whipple who in 1775 commanded vessels in the first naval engagement and captured valuable British prizes.
